I Am: The Door

We Prepare

Neither Paul's difficult circumstance nor the frightening dangers faced by the Philippians can be allowed to eclipse Christian joy as the mark of faith. Clearly Paul does not have in mind the kind of superficial happiness that manifests itself only when things go well. No, it is a rejoicing that can be had [always], because it depends not on changing circumstances but on the one who does not change: "Rejoice in the Lord."
